numbering system

A new system has been utilised in regards to site numbering that will make your experience as an exhibitor easier.

They are numbered from north to south on west-facing sites, and south to north on east-facing sites.

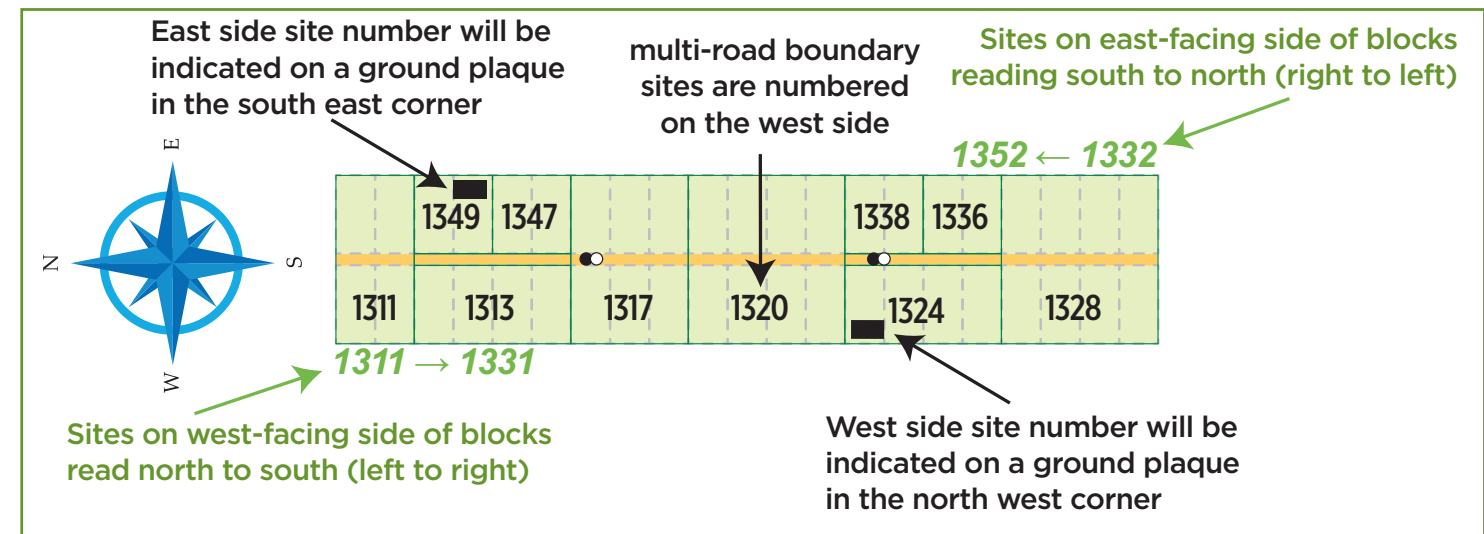

It means that in future years if you are a returning exhibitor and have booked the same site location and size, your site number will not change.

Your site number will be the number of the first 6 metre block width of your total allocated site.

In future years, your site number will only change if you have moved or resized.

Sites are now permanently numbered in 6 metre width increments (indicated by the dotted lines on the map overleaf).
